

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

From a user terminal purchase order is sent to a sales center over a network when a user who wants to purchase a ticket, in the sales center, on receipt of the purchase order sending ticket information to the user terminal if the sales center receives permission information from a charge transfer terminal, wherein the user terminal on receipt of ticket information from the sales center, generates an IC card, on which the ticket information is stored, using an IC card writer connected to the user terminal, and wherein when the user uses a ticket of the IC card, a gate terminal reads the ticket information stored on the ticket card via an IC card reader to send the ticket information that is read to the sales center, the sales center comparing ticket information received with ticket information stored in the sales center, the gate terminal controls user's admission based on a comparison result sent from the sales center.